

DRXC Emergency Response Procedure

revised 2024 January

Prevention and Safety Precautions

1. In advance, find out about the area you want to ski in and about the trail conditions. Choose trails that are within your ability.
2. Bring one or more printed maps (see www.drxc.ca/maps/).
3. Tell someone where you are going and when you expect to return.
4. Avoid skiing alone, especially if you are skiing in the backcountry.
5. Carry a charged cell phone, and keep it in a warm place (close to your body). Note that cell reception is generally better at higher elevations. For the trails maintained by the DRXC, cell coverage as of 2020 is as follows:
 - Silver Spoon trails (accessed from Balmer Bay Road) – Generally good on all trails.
 - Bass Lake (or Cabin) trails (accessed from Bass Lake Road) – Good within the first 5 km of the trail head, and spotty beyond that out to the cabin. Beyond the cabin, cell coverage is poor.
 - Petawawa Research Forest trails – Good near roads, and spotty farther into the bush.

6. When traveling in the backcountry, bring extra equipment such as:
- Energy food and a hot drink in a thermos
 - Extra warm clothes (e.g., down vest, hat, and mitts) •
Matches or lighter and a candle to light a fire
 - Chemical heat packs
 - Personal first aid kit, including bandaids and a tensor bandage
 - Gorilla or duct tape, rope, handsaw

In Case of an Injury on the Trail

1. Stay calm and assess the situation.
2. If the person is able to walk out, accompany him/her and monitor closely, especially if the situation could worsen. 3. For all injuries for which a person needs support, phone volunteers on the DRXC emergency call list (listed below). 4. Keep the person safe and warm (e.g., wrap in blanket or extra clothing, light a fire, build a snow shelter). If needed, send someone to get a toboggan and/or supplies from a first aid barrel (locations listed below).
3. For a serious medical condition (e.g., unconscious, possible heart attack, fracture of a major bone, or unable to get out even with help), phone 9-1-1 immediately. Pass on the information. Ask how long it will take for help to arrive.
4. If possible, send someone to the trail access point to meet emergency response vehicles.

5. If you cannot phone, either send another person for help, or leave the person in a safe place and go for help.
6. Please inform the DRXC of incidents so that the emergency preparedness can be improved.

In Case of a Lost Person

1. Phone someone on the General Call List, who can advise on how to best organize a search (or who can coordinate the search for you).
2. If a quick search is unsuccessful, phone 9-1-1.

DRXC Emergency Call List

If a skier gets lost or injured on any of the local trails, the following skiers are prepared to help. Working with the emergency response professionals (contacted through 9-1-1), they can help with rescues or searches, and suggest the best access points on the trails for snowmobiles or ATVs. The volunteers represent a mix of trail knowledge, skiing ability, physical endurance, and first aid experience.

General Call List (in alphabetical order): These volunteers can be the single-point contact or overall coordinator (one phone call).
